Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Parables of Sated the Sage All true teaching is by parables. The relativity of knowledge compels us to learn, if we learn at all, by comparison and contrast. We have no words for things of the intellect and soul that are not first words of physical things or states. Hence we must always be taught what the kingdom of heaven is like unto. The brief chapters which make up this book have appeared in successive issues of The Advance during recent months. They are a literary recreation, and something more; for they have a serious purpose. They were begun with little thought that they would be continued more than a few weeks, but as readers of The Advance appeared to like them, and other papers copied them, they have continued to appear. The first one was written while the writer, accompanied by his wife, was making a tour of the Mississippi River in the spring of 1915. The manner in which the mate of the boat addressed the colored deckhands afforded some food for...
